Money Has Power
The Foolish Forties
Those Terrible Reds
Our Age of Folly

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1930, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

MRS. NELSON NORRIS, divorced from the descendant of an important Chicago beef packing concern, says:

"I was quickly disappointed in my husband. He thinks money can buy everything."

That opinion has a substantial foundation. Money can buy and has bought the following: Many seats in the Senate, a good-looking Cabinet officer and a government oil reserve, young wives for ugly old men, an assortment of minor judges in New York and elsewhere, special permits to violate building and other laws, prohibition enforcement offices by the hundreds.

Money cannot buy talent or reputation that makes life worth while. It cannot buy real affection. Ask foolish fathers that spoil children with too much money. It cannot buy heaven or forgiveness of sins, although one generation believed that it could.

Money can buy murder under our gangster system. You can hire the killing of an enemy not prominent for $500, more for a conspicuous mark.

It used to be cheaper. "Big Tim" Sullivan, author of New York State's Sullivan law, forbidding carrying of pistols, said:

"For $30 I can have any man in New York killed."

The Rev. Sam Stegg tells Chicago it is "the world's most wicked city," adding:

"I have seen Shanghai and Paris, too."

The worst things he saw in Paris, although he may not have known it, were amusements especially prepared for foolish Americans.

The Rev. Mr. Stegg says modern youth "in 30 per cent better than it was in my day." The real trouble, he tells a Methodist camp meeting, is not with "flaming youth, but with men and women in their foolish fat forties."

Investigators are finding out all about the "dangerous and desperate Russian Reds." They are trying to overthrow our Constitution, it seems, but those that ignore the Eighteenth Amendment cannot well criticize them for that.

They also want to overthrow our government.

If it is weak enough to be overthrown at the request of gentlemen across the ocean, we might as well try to find a better government now, without waiting to be overthrown.

Grover Whalen, energetic advocate of action, former police commissioner of New York, would have the "Reds" deported to some island and put to work. It should be an island big enough for some of our gangsters, kidnapers, bribe-taking officials, dishonest judges and others. Russian Reds are not the only individuals that attack this government.

Our age is one of complicated folly, with many fools to applaud. Young boys are encouraged to engage in bicycle riding contests that ruin health.

Adults engage in non-stop dancing contests, equally harmful. Many sit on flagpoles for days and weeks, proud of themselves. A 12-year-old boy starts a "tree-sitting endurance contest." His father supports his plan to remain in the tree for a month, although the weather man tells him the tree may be struck by lightning and advises a lightning rod.

Simeon Stylites began it, more than 1500 years ago, spending years on top of a high column, preaching from his perch, never coming down.

That was different because he thought the Lord would like to see somebody live on a high column for years.

Different also is the case of the "holy man" of Benares.

He went further than Simeon and sat all day long on sharp iron spikes. He thought that would please his God. In both cases the faithful contributed liberally. Today the fools contribute.

WALSH STOPS HOOVER 'GAG' PLAN

Thompson, Calm, Asks for Speedy Trial

BACK IN SAUGUS UNDER GUARD AFTER ARREST IN NEW HAVEN

Officers Declare He Wrote and Signed Confession in Slaying of Aunt

"TROUBLED CONSCIENCE"

Dr. Magrath Reveals a Gog Was Found in Mouth of Mrs. Wight

Calm and asking a speedy trial, Bernard Thompson, 26, of Dorchester, alleged slayer of his aunt, Mrs. Katherine Edith Thompson Wight of Saugus, returned from New Haven last night in custody of Massachusetts police.

"I guess I must have been out of my head, but she shouldn't have talked about my mother that way," was his excuse.

From New Haven, where yesterday morning he surrendered to police because of a troubled conscience, Thompson was brought back by automobile in custody of Special Officer James Sullivan of Saugus and State Detective William F. Murray.

He was taken at once to Saugus and was again the subject of a thorough examination.

SIGNS A WAIVER

Thompson, alleged to have beaten his aunt, a private detective, with a blackjack in her Saugus home, expressed himself as relieved at his arrest. He signed a waiver of extradition rights before leaving New Haven.

The Thompson surrendered to a New Haven policeman in the early hours of yesterday, after he had read in a Boston newspaper he was wanted for questioning.

This story had just been told in New Haven when Dr. George Burgess Magrath, medical examiner for the northern district of Suffolk County, reported on his autopsy of the murdered woman's body and stated he had found a gag stuffed far down her throat.

He and his aunt, a former store detective, were drinking when the altercation occurred, Thompson wrote in his alleged confession. It read:

"On July 15, at 8:30 a. m., I went to my aunt's home, Mrs. K. Edith Thompson Wight, my mother's sister, at 93 Vine st., Saugus. Shortly after my arrival there we went to the grocery store together, and later went to Boston to purchase some paint. Then we went to my aunt's house in Saugus and had something to eat about 10 a. m.

"After that we sat and talked and both drank beer and wine.

"During this drinking my aunt was talking about my mother and I couldn't stand for it. All this talk took place in the sunparlor.

SECURES BLACKJACK

"I went and got a blackjack that I had when I lived in my aunt's house. I couldn't say how many times I struck her. She fell to the floor while I was striking her with the blackjack.

"I was drinking after I left my aunt's house. I took a bus from Saugus to my home in Dorchester. I hung around the house for a while and then I went to a movie. Then I went home again.

"Thursday morning I left my home and started on the road. I

VALET FINDS MILLIONAIRE SHOT IN BED

HELD WEAPON IN HAND

Wife of New York and Newport Financier in Europe; Second Bullet Mystifies Authorities

Universal Service

New York, July 19—Henry St. Francis Black, 67, one of the most powerful figures in finance and real estate in New York, and prominent socially here and in Newport, died tonight from bullet wounds.

He was found shot through the head at his country home near Huntington, L. I., earlier in the day.

Confronting with the alternative that the case was either attempted murder or attempted suicide, detectives confessed themselves unable to decide definitely.

Black was discovered in bed at 11 a. m. by his valet, Gustave Anderson.

He found his master lying on his back with a 32-caliber revolver in his hand and his face covered with blood. The servant telephoned Dr. W. C. Brinkhill.

TWO SHOTS FIRED

The doctor found Black unconscious. A bullet had been fired through his skull from the right side. Examination of the weapon showed two cartridges were empty.

A hasty survey of the room revealed neither bullet and there were no powder marks on the face of the victim nor on the bed clothing.

Black had for years been known as "America's greatest landlord." He was president and chairman of the board of directors of the United States Realty and Improvement Co., a multi-millioned corporation of 111 Broadway, which owns the Plaza and Savoy-Plaza hotels in this city, Trinity and other great office structures, and which recently sold the Hippodrome for $32,000,000.

He had been twice married. Mrs. Isabella May Black, a former Washington belle, is now on a European tour.

A few years ago Black was found immersed in a bathtub in his home and the mystery of his plight never was explained.

AFFAIRS IN ORDER

The Plaza Hotel management stated Black had left his elaborate apartment on the 18th floor on Friday to go to Huntington and thence to his summer home, Allondale, at Lloyds Harbor, three miles from the town.

He was said to have been in good spirits, and assurances were given that his financial and domestic affairs were in excellent condition. No reason for suicide or murder could be given.

Deputy Sheriffs Amzi Biggs and William Baker, and Asst. District Attorney Frederick Mundel followed Dr. Penhill to the Black country home. They questioned Anderson and other servants, but all asserted they had heard no shot nor any indication of an intruder.

Deputy Sheriff Biggs asserted the shot was fired by the financier but Dr. Penhill expressed doubt of it and the assistant prosecutor said:

"I am not ready to make a statement or venture an opinion."

"An Dr. Penhill says, the absence of powder marks may prove very important."

SOUNDS IN ROOM

George A. Fuller, a nephew by marriage of Black, hurried to the country estate, which he formerly owned. He also queried the servants, who said Black had not appeared for breakfast, but that this did not cause any concern.

The servants switched on the radio early in the morning and soon

With 37 reported deaths, the blistering heat wave which has held practically the entire country in its grip for a week showed little sign of abating yesterday.

Temperatures in the West were holding well above 100 and crops were being dried up.

From Michigan to the Atlantic the heat wave continued to send the temperature toward the 100 mark. Detroit, New York, Pittsburgh and other cities were sweltering.

The high mark in Boston was reached at 4 p. m. when the thermometer hit 90. There it remained for three hours, gradually dropping and hovering round 86 toward midnight.

Starting at 1 a. m. with 75, the same figure as on Friday, the thermometer held to that figure until 8 o'clock, when it rose to 78, and then by leaps to 88 at noon. Cloudy skies tempered the heat for several hours, but late afternoon the mercury went to high figure for the day.

TWO DROWNINGS.

William H. Muse, 42, a lineman, of Kendall st., Malden, was overcome while at work on a pole at Commonwealth ave. and Center st., Newton, and fell 35 feet. He was taken to Newton Hospital, suffering from probable broken ribs.

Esther Scalzi, 18, of Washington st., Dorchester, was overcome while at work in a South End laundry. She was taken to City Hospital.

Henry G. Wheeler of Warwick rd., Belmont, was overcome in Adams sq. and taken to the Relief Station.

Mae G. Kelley of Irving, N. Y., a tercentenary visitor, was overcome on Washington st. near the old State House, and taken to the Relief Station.

An unidentified man, about 40, was found overcome in a doorway on Dore st., South End, and taken to City Hospital.

Joseph C. Flynn, 69, Lowell lodging house proprietor, dropped dead in his office of a heart attack, brought on by the heat according to physicians.

Victims of two canoeists, who sought relief from the heat in an early morning trip on Coe's pond, Worcester, was drowned when the craft overturned. RUDY VALLEE greeting his mother during the home-coming celebration at Westbrook, Me.

STRAIN TOO MUCH FOR MRS. VALLEE

Westbrook, Me., July 19—Excitement attending her son's homecoming proved too much today for Mrs. Charles A. Vallee. She was confined to her bed, while Rudy cancelled his day's engagements to be with her.

The only observance he attended was the dedication of the square at Main and Bridge sts., which was renamed Vallee sq.

After the dedication the crooner hurried back to the Vallee home, where his mother lay, victim of nervous exhaustion brought on by the welcome home to the boy who used to tend his father's soda fountain.

The drug store faces the square into which, less than a decade ago, today's hero of the hour used to gaze, never dreaming that, in 1930, it would bear his name.

"THE BOY WHO MADE GOOD"

Ernest O. Dorell, chairman of the welcome home celebration committee, was in charge of the dedication and told the crooner, while hundreds of spectators cheered:

"Rudy, you're the idol of the nation, but to us you are just Hubert, a home town boy who made good."

Mayor Eugene I. Cummings, in his address, explained that the Jumping fully clothed into a pool at a gravel pit on Bright st., Waltham, yesterday, Cornelius Gromler, 20, of Bright st., rescued from drowning John Conway, eight, of Newton st., Waltham.

The Conway boy with his brother Paul, six, had gone to the pool for a swim. John jumped into the water and immediately sank.

Other boys playing on the brink of the pool ran to the roadway for help and found Gremler in his auto with George Lavassa, 21, of Main st., Waltham.

Both Gremler and Lavassa jumped into the pool in search of the missing boy.

The rescued boy was treated by City Physician C. Benjamin Fuller and by a ladder crew of the Waltham fire department and was sent home.

NURSE IS ALWAYS AT KING'S CALL

London, July 19 (INS)—The health of King George V is still the cause of anxiety, it was revealed today in the brief announcement that Sister Catherine Black, one of the four nurses who tended his majesty during his latest illness, had been given the post of permanent nurse to the King.

Nurse Black has been assigned to apartments in Buckingham Palace, where she will be able to keep a constant watch on his majesty's health.

CYCLIST IS HURLED 20 FEET TO DEATH

Henry Gervais, 25, of Heath st., Jamaica Plain, was fatally injured yesterday when he was tossed 20 feet from his motorcycle at River st. and Memorial Drive.

In attempting to avoid a collision on the park drive, he ran his machine into the curbing. He was taken to the Cambridge Relief Hospital where he died a few minutes later from a fractured skull.

MGR. SULLIVAN OF R. I. IS DEAD

Pawtucket, R. I., July 19—Rt. Rev. John F. Sullivan, D. D., domestic prelate, ecclesiastical attorney for the Providence diocese and pastor of Holy Trinity Church, Central Falls, died tonight, after a year's illness, at the church rectory.

Mgr. Sullivan was one of the outstanding figures in Rhode Island church circles. He was born in Newport in 1867 and was educated at St. Mary's College at Emmetsburg, Md.; St. Mary's Seminary Baltimore, and Catholic University Washington. He was ordained in 1891 at Providence cathedral, to which he was attached until 1919 when he was assigned to Holy Trinity Church.

St. Mary's College conferred the degree of doctor of divinity on him in 1923. He was made a domestic prelate by Pope Pius XI last November.

Mgr. Sullivan was a student of astronomy and had written a number of volumes on this as well as on religious subjects.

HOOVER PICKS 3 FOR POWER BOARD

Washington, July 19 (AP)—President Hoover today nominated Claude L. Draper of Wyoming, Ralph B. Williamson of Washington state, and Marcel Garsaud of Louisiana, as members of the newly-created federal power commission.

He also sent to the Senate the following nominations: William M. Jardine, Kansas, to be minister to Egypt; Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, Utah, to be administrator of veterans' affairs, and Nicholas Roosevelt, New York, to be vice governor of the Philippine Islands.

"The Prince of Wales is planning an unusual adventure this year," the newspaper said. "He intends to visit the United States and Canada accompanied by Sir Philip Sassoon.

"They will take an airplane with them and will go to various parts of the North American continent on a free-and-easy camping holiday."

BUILD UP U. S. NAVY TO LIMIT OF PACT, SAYS MASS. SENATOR

Resolution Acts Like Bombshell in Demoralizing Friends of London Treaty

JOHNSON ADDS TO BLOW

Claffornian Finds No Resolution to Ratify Had Even Been Put Before Chamber

By FRAZER EDWARDS
Universal Service

Washington, July 19—President Hoover tonight was confronted with the alternative of accepting a proposal offered in the Senate to build the American navy up to the limit of London naval treaty or admit the pact is a sham.

This adroit move made by Sen. David I. Walsh of Massachusetts took administration leaders by surprise and left them in a panic.

In addition to the mockery rejection of the proposal would make of the treaty, the administration will lose Walsh's vote, which had been counted for the pact.

On the other hand, acceptance of the Walsh resolution would result in the loss of the votes of several senators with pacifistic tendencies, who are supporting the treaty with the belief that the United States never will build up to the limit allowed.

Administration forces were "outsmarted" at every turn "today by the treaty foes. As observed parliamentary tactics they stripped the gears of the Hoover steam roller and forced action on the treaty to go over until next week.

JOHNSON HURLS BOMB

Chagrined leaders were caught asleep at the switch by Sen. Johnson of California, leader of the pact foes, when he revealed that the resolution could not be introduced until the treaty had been ratified and the must lie over for a day before a vote could be taken upon it.

Then they found their punishment program which held the Senate in session for 12 hours last night had been in vain.

Once that point was established, Johnson allowed the treaty to be read for amendments. This shifted the burden of debate to the shoulders of Senator Reed of Pennsylvania and Robinson of Arkansas, delegates to the London conference.

REED IS PEEVED

They were kept on their feet most of the day answering a barrage of questions fired at them by foes of the pact. They did not enjoy their task and at one point Reed lost his temper and refused to reply to Senator Hale of Maine until he "got off the floor."

The first direct action on the treaty itself was when an amendment by Senator Bingham of Connecticut to safeguard American interests under the "escalator" clause was rejected without a record vote.

It provided that the United States could build eight-inch gun cruisers if Great Britain or Japan, taking advantage of the clause, should build six-inch gun cruisers.

Opponents of the treaty allowed the amendment to be voted down without a roll call in order to proceed to offer a reservation to the same effect. In all 14 reservations are now pending before the Senate, half a dozen more having been offered today.

ADJOURN TO TOMORROW

Administration leaders failed in every out their threat to hold another night session after Johnson again refused to agree to a time for a final vote. After reading of the treaty the Senate adjournment until 11 o'clock morning following presentation of the resolution of ratification by Senator Borah of Idaho.

Despite Johnson's refusal, Watson still hesitated about invoking cloture. He is opposed to the League Court, which probably will be sent to the Senate in December and he fears that to clap on the gag rule now would serve as a precedent then.

Although reservations designed to protect American rights was one by Sen. Johnson declaring the treaty null and void if the United States should enter the League of Nations and of the League Court.

Administration leaders said their Democratic allies hope to be able to avoid a direct vote on the Walsh

GIRL PUTS PUP IN ICE BOX, BUT RESCUE PLAN IS FATAL

PITYING the suffering of a white pup who was apparently nearly overcome by the heat, a little girl of six carefully placed him in the ice box at her home on Hudson st., Somerville.

Yesterday her mother was startled to discover a dead pup in her ice chest.

The dog was a white hound hunting pup. It is believed to be the property of a Boston attorney. Its description corresponds with that of the pup the little girl rescued.

All the youngsters of the neighborhood mourned the dog yesterday when his would-be rescuer buried him with honors.

Hutchinson Tells of His Coming Solo Hop for Paris

HE AIMS TO CUT TIME OF LINDBERGH

Noted Flier Says Trip Will Be Entirely on Scientific Lines of Pursuit

STUNTS ARE NOT NEEDED

Proper Co-ordination of Newly Discovered Appliances the Thing, He Insists

By GEORGE R. HUTCHINSON

Famous Aviator, Who Plans to Fly From New York to Paris Shortly.

(Copyright 1930, by King Features Syndicate, Inc. All rights reserved. Reproduction in whole or in part strictly prohibited. Distributed by Universal Service, Inc.)

Los Angeles, July 19.

WHEN SUCH a flight as mine—a solo trip from New York to Paris—is contemplated, there is always one thought uppermost in people's minds—why?

Why should a full-grown man in all his senses and faculties be willing to risk his life in such a feat when he has nothing to gain by it unless he succeeds. Success is supposed to be a bit of luck, and failure means, in most cases, death!

I have an explanation. It satisfies my wife. It satisfies my sponsors. It satisfies me.

I consider myself a scientist. Fliers know that aviation is now an advancing science which needs experimenters.

Not expertmenters who do crazy stunts merely for the sake of the stunts themselves and for the accompanying glory. But experimenters who can demonstrate to the world the steps that aviation has taken in the right direction in the last few years.

Perhaps the most outstanding or at least one of the two outstanding events in the history of aviation is that famous flight of Lindbergh across the Atlantic—alone!

Three years have passed since he made that epoch-setting trip.

Hence, with Lindbergh's flight as a basis or standard from which to judge, another trip—in a more modern plane with more up-to-date instruments and the knowledge gained by these pioneers—will clearly show in which manner aviation has progressed.

Less Than Day

Attempt Will Be Made to Cut Lindbergh Time

Three years ago, Lindbergh took off from Roosevelt Field and arrived at his announced goal, Le Bourget, some 33 hours later.

With only an earth inductor compass, he blazed the way from America to Paris by air.

Other fliers have crossed the ocean since. Many of them, in fact. They have demonstrated that Lindbergh's trip was not a flight of the gods, but that airplane engines now have been improved to the extent that they can cross almost any expanse of earth or water with comparative safety.

But there still remains the place for the man who can emulate Lindbergh—who can take off from an airdrome, head for an announced port across the seas and get there! Such a flight will be a step forward.

Such will be this flight. But where Lindbergh with a plane of an earlier era in aviation took 33 hours to do it, the Lockheed Sirius that will be my aerial steed will attempt to do it in less than a day—less than 24 hours.

Thus, if my ship can cut more than 10 hours from the former mark, if the instruments developed since Lindbergh's flight can be demonstrated, if a scientifically-planned flight will make it clear that such flights are not really stunts, but are as much an experiment as when the professor in the laboratory handles a test-tube of death-dealing bacteria, then we have gone forward.

So, with this in mind, a group of public-minded citizens of Virginia and of Richmond—50 of them—have assisted me to purchase this Lockheed Sirius for the try.

The ship is equipped with the latest type of aviation equipment obtainable. I doubt if there is another ship in the entire world so completely instrumented.

Radio to Ships

Flier Will Be Able to Correct Ocean Maps

But I shall not depend on any one instrument for my navigation. I will have but little time in which to take readings.

Instead, I will supplement my instruments with the use of a radio.

Thus, through an arrangement with the United States Lines, I hope to be in contact with their ships from time to time on the way across, enabling me to get my position from their radio operators.

This will be charted then on one of the Rand-McNally maps I will carry, permitting at all times corrections for wind drifts

I am allowing for the possibility that something might go wrong with my engine and land me in the sea.

Preparations are being made in case it comes about that we are marooned atop the waves.

Of course, I have but little doubt that my Lockheed and my Wasp engine will get me across to Le Bourget in record time.

And then, how can I fail to get to Le Bourget and Paris when my wife and my two darling daughters will be there waiting for me?

They will go abroad in about a week.

HOOVER MEN'S PLAN TO FORCE TREATY FAILS

resolution, but even if they succeed Walsh will offer it as a reservation to the treaty and thus force a record vote on the proposal of building up to the limit.

WALSH'S SAFETY VALVE

Sen. Walsh, in presenting his resolution, declared the United States might obtain naval parity with Great Britain under the treaty, but only by building up to its maximum limits.

He protested against the position of "helpless naval inferiority" in which the United States found itself on entering the conference at London.

He declared the failure to secure any real reduction in naval armaments was due to the fact "that the American navy was proportionately inferior to the navies of Great Britain and Japan."

"When other nations are maintaining maximum navies permitted under the treaties," he added, "the failure of the United States in this respect is an admission to the world of our purpose to maintain a navy of actual inferior strength to what our needs require."

SEEMS SURE OF ADOPTION

The Walsh resolution would place the Senate in favor of building all cruisers, mounting guns in excess of 6.1 inches, all aircraft carriers, all destroyers and all submarines permitted the United States under the treaty.

Walsh asked unanimous consent for a vote on his resolution prior to a vote on the treaty. Sen. Reed (R) of Pennsylvania, one of the American delegates to London, suggested the resolution be "slightly changed" before Walsh made his request.

The Massachusetts Senator agreed, but it was apparent his resolution would be voted upon and adopted before the treaty is ratified.

Walsh took administration leaders by surprise when he sponsored his resolution. He said he favored the treaty and its purpose to limit armament in order to reduce the crushing and burdensome expenses of maintaining war preparations in time of peace by the overtaxed peoples of the earth.

He said there were "high taxes everywhere, causing discontent," and leading to a "general desire to lessen the burdens by reducing military armaments."

ALL BUT U. S. VIOLATORS

The Massachusetts senator declared, however, that all nations participating in the Washington conference except the United States had violated the spirit of that armament limitation agreement by building naval rates in the unlimited categories. He pointed out that since the 1922 conference England had built 74 warships, Japan 125, France 119, Italy 82 and the United States but 18.

"These figures are a shameful indictment of the disregard that the country of the world who participated in the Washington conference entertained toward the spirit behind the conference," said Walsh.

Walsh added that the failure of the Geneva conference was due to American naval weakness. He said the failure proved it was a "serious mistake" for the United States to suspend naval construction while other nations strengthened their navies. He said the fact that the United States had no ships to destroy had also resulted in another failure at London.

"The London treaty seeks to protect the world against the excessiveness of militant armaments," he continued, "but there is no protection against pacifism carried to the extent of imperilling our security unless we establish, as other countries have done, an actual combat parity. Furthermore, the one outstanding fact learned from these conferences is that reduction of naval armament will come alone from our being on an actual parity with other nations at future conferences."

square was being dedicated prematurely because Rudy was in town. Action by the city council cannot be taken before next week, but the action will be favorable, Mayor Cummings said, smilingly.

In reply the home town hero declared that the naming of the square for him constituted the greatest honor he ever received.

The party then went to the Star Theater, where Fred Engley, manager, addressing Rudy Vallee and the crowd, said:

"A short time ago, comparatively, you came here and asked me for a job and I gave it to you because of my great love for your father and because I knew you'd make good. You have surpassed my expectations."

Rudy replied that the theater job had proved a stepping stone "to what success I have attained as a musician."

Despite her illness, Rudy's mother urged that he attend the banquet tonight in his honor at the Congress Sq. Hotel in Portland, and the crooner finally consented to leave her side.

At the banquet he was introduced to Lincoln R. Colcord of Searsport, a short story writer, and Adelbert W. Sprague of Bangor, who wrote lyrics and tune respectively for the "Stein Song," which Rudy has made known throughout the world.

The biggest event on the Rudy Vallee homecoming celebration calendar will be Monday night, when the friends and neighbors of the crooner pay him homage in American Legion Hall at another banquet.

Gov. William Tudor Gardiner and Congressman Carroll L. Beedy will be present and will review a street parade prior to the spread.

Frank F. Pride, lifelong friend of the Vallees, will be toastmaster, and Mayor Cummings will be cheer leader.

On Tuesday Rudy Vallee will conclude his visit home and will start a tour of New England with his famous Connecticut Yankees dance orchestra.

FLIER VAINLY TRIES TO DROP FORGOTTEN PASSPORT ON SHIP

New York, July 19 (AP)

THE UNSUCCESSFUL ATTEMPT of an airplane pilot to drop a forgotten passport on the deck of the French liner Paris as she steamed out of the harbor has placed modest Stein in a quandary.

Last night Stein, an artist, raided his friends in New York that he had forgotten the document. They engaged a plane at Curtiss Field and told the pilot, John Farr, to drop the passport on the Paris' deck. Due to the darkness, Farr was unable to distinguish the French liner and returned to the field rather than make a mistake.

Officials of the French line cabled the number of the passport to Havre today in the hope that Stein will be allowed to go ashore until the document arrives by mail.

GIRL KIDNAPED BY TWO IN AUTO

Investigation by police of Cambridge of the disappearance of Roberta Clayton, six, late yesterday, led to their conclusion that the child was taken away by her own mother from in front of the home of Mrs. Myrtle Clark, where the child has lived for the past four years.

Roberta is the child of a woman styling herself as Mrs. Dorothy Clayton, formerly employed in a Boston restaurant but for the past several years said to reside at Corona, L. I., New York.

During the past year or more Mrs. Clark told police, no remittance has been received for the child's board. Yesterday forenoon a man called at the Clark home, saying he had been sent by Mrs. Clayton to take the child away. Mrs. Clark refused to let her go.

Late in the afternoon, when Roberta was playing on the sidewalk in front of the house an auto containing a man and woman drove up and after some conversation with the child took her into the car and drove away.

RICH REALTY MAN IS FATALLY SHOT

after slight sounds were heard in Black's bedroom.

The valet, interpreting this as an indication of restlessness on the part of his sleeping master, switched off the radio. No further sounds were heard from Black's room.

Robert Von Buskirk, an artist with a studio apartment at Sixth ave. and 57th st., who accompanied Black to his Long Island estate for a week-end visit, returned to New York tonight.

Von Buskirk, who seemed to be greatly agitated, declined to discuss the affair. To all questions as to what motive may have actuated the shooting or what Black's state of mind may have been, Von Buskirk would only say:

"I won't discuss it."

At the Hotel Plaza there was consternation when the news was conveyed to the management.

Harry F. Shaub, the assistant manager, said in the absence of the manager, Fred Sperry:

"Mr. Black left the hotel Friday at noon in the best of health and was as cheerful as possible. He left word he was going to Huntington, L. I., for the week end.

"Mrs. Black, his wife, who is a daughter of Col. William May of Washington, is in Europe with her sister, Mrs. Von Roth. They left about three weeks ago for an extended tour of the continent."

"We have no clue to the reasons back of this. Conditions here, and we are sure, in his family relations, were harmonious in every particular. Mr. Black's whole demeanor when he left Friday was that of a contented, happy man, with not a thing in the world to trouble him.

"He occupied an apartment on the eighteenth floor especially built for him. It was not a penthouse, but much larger, spacious, with every possible comfort. The apartment is without evidence that he was the least disturbed when he left."

Newport Stirred by Black Shooting

Newport, R. I., July 19—Henry St. Francis Black, known in the society colony as "Harry," was one of the most prominent of local summer residents. News of his death in New York caused a stir in the colony. Little in the way of detailed information was given out here, and the report was that "Harry" had committed suicide.

George A. Fuller, nephew of Black, received the first news over long distance telephone. He at once got in touch with Black's personal physician, Dr. George Rolfing Lee, who late this afternoon left for New York city. Dr. Lee is a great-grandson of Gen. Robert E. Lee.

Paris Adopts Bees as Pets

Paris, July 19.

A PARISIAN news dealer is selling swarms of bees.

Parisians can buy the bees, take them to their flats, feed them a certain kind of food, and have home-made honey.

The report of huge sales of bees has put a number of landlords on their guard. They have hung up notices reading, "No Bees Permitted As Pets."

MASS. AGAINST TREATY, WIRES McCORMACK

Congressman Asks Walsh and Johnson to Insist on Suitable Reservations

A telegram stating that Massachusetts was strongly opposed to Senate ratification of the London naval pact was sent by Cong. John W. McCormack of Boston last night to Sen. David I. Walsh at Washington.

The Congressman sent a similar message to Sen. Hiram W. Johnson of California. The Congressman telegraphed as follows:

"Sentiment in Massachusetts very strong against ratification of London pact, particularly in view of refusal to disclose to Senate and to the public the secret documents.

RESERVATION URGED

"While I am opposed to ratification of the pact, in the event that it is ratified I believe a reservation should be made so that the binding effect of the treaty should be null and void if it be later disclosed that any of the contracting parties has entered into or may later enter into any treaty agreement or alliance with any other of the contracting parties, or with any other country, which treaty or alliance in the event of war might be prejudicial to our best interests."

The Congressman later discussed his stand. He called the pact a preliminary step to an effort to bring this country into alliance with some European nation "in the near future." He said the "whole uncertainty" in the negotiations at London made it wise not to ratify the agreement.

NATION'S PROTECTION

He said the pact without proper reservations would be a menace and would put this country at a disadvantage in the event of war with a nation secretly allied to another.

"Our navy is our first line of defense," he continued, "and in the case of attack, the United States could be seriously handicapped if the combined fleets of two or more nations were to attack us."

Congressman McCormack said the first step toward lasting peace was for nations to agree to disarm into no alliances to assist one another in time of war.

"Why should we enter into this agreement," he said, "when there is no limitation put upon England and Japan in making agreements with other nations for war purposes?

"Assuming England and Japan have such an agreement, their combined fleets would be nearly double that which the United States would be authorized to build. We owe our first duty to the protection of our own people and our own shores."

The congressman is under treatment for pulmonary hemorrhages suffered early Friday and believed to have been brought on by overwork.

His condition last night was reported slightly improved, but his name remains on the danger list.

Dozens of his friends have inquired at the hospital about his condition and for a time grave concern was felt.

Boston Today Puts New Traffic System to the Test

18-MILE SPEED IN AREA SET BY REGULATIONS

Lights to Be Controlled From Station at the City Hall Annex

CONRY IS CONFIDENT

Only Complete Automatic System in the World, Says Engineer Hurley

With the inauguration this morning on Boston streets of what is described as a flexible progressive traffic system, Traffic Commissioner Joseph J. Conry hopes to solve the city's traffic congestion problem.

All traffic lights will be controlled automatically from a station at City Hall Annex, the light cables centering upon a panel board, 12 by 7 feet described by Traffic Engineer John F. Hurley as the only completely automatic system in the world.

Controls on the central board are so arranged that in the event the timer fails, the current fails or there is a short circuit, duplicate instruments come into play without any interruption in the service.

SET FOR 18-MILE SPEED

The system is regulated for a traffic speed of 18 miles an hour. When a green light goes on at Broadway and Washington sts., a car travelling at this rate of speed should be able to go to Haymarket sq without interruption.

The same result maintains when a green light shows at Cambridge st. and Scollay sq., an auto being able to go through Tremont and Broadway or down Boylston to Arlington without interruption.

When the traffic light is green a. Park and Beacon sts. the car will proceed down Beacon to Washington, relieving the delay at the top of Beacon st., about which there have been many complaints.

OUTCOME OF TWO SYSTEMS

Engineer Hurley said yesterday that the new system is the outcome of experiments with two older systems, one the block system now used in New York and the other the progressive system of block signalling. The advantages of the new flexible system, he said, are the lack of connection or relation between streets, each being individually controlled without consideration of the other.

Automobiles coming into the controlled thoroughfares from side streets will be subjected to a halt never exceeding 40 seconds. The driver of a car regulating his speed to 18 miles an hour will arrive at each light post as it is flashing green on the through streets.

Commissioner Conry's engineers will study the operation of the new system today, Monday and Tuesday and make such minor changes as conditions warrant.

Blue Sky Is Church Roof at the Nyala Truth Camp

West Acton Venture Is the "Fulfilment of a Dream"

Campers Hold Services, Dine and Enjoy Recreation in the Open Air

"NYALA," an Indian word meaning "natural love, life and liberty," is the name of a camp in West Acton where a group of religious visitors have as their church roof the blue sky.

The spot is charming, consisting of 180 acres of woodland bordering on a lake a mile long and three-quarters of a mile wide. Footpaths wind up and down hill, along the lake front, and through the pine forest.

Bungalows and tents scattered here and there, and a quaint old Colonial house shelter the members of the religious society. They hold services, dine, and enjoy their recreation in the open.

Nyala Truth Camp, which is its official name, is a new venture, and is maintained by an organization known as The Home of Truth, with headquarters at 111 Newbury st., Boston. National headquarters are in California.

Miss Eleanor Mel, who established the society here, said:

"This is the fulfillment of a dream. The Home of Truth has been established in Boston 11 years now, and since its inception, I have always wished for a place such as this where our followers could worship in a free and natural manner.

"Spiritual Psychology"

"Believing that recreation is not only of the body, but also of mind and soul, while enjoying a vacation in the open we are also endeavoring to apply the principles taught by Jesus to our everyday life.

"Our principles are those of spiritual psychology, and we are teaching just that in the open during the summer months. Jesus did not require a church to teach in; He taught in the open and in homes.

"This organization is really not a church establishment; there is nothing to join, nothing to leave. Its followers are not bound in any way. We are not building up a congregation.

"We do not believe there should be any sects or creeds, but one big human family, loving each other, looking for the good in the individual, and worshiping Jesus Christ according to the principles He taught.

"Without a Leader"

"Ours is a church without a leader—an organization of love. We believe in the power of healing, also. There is a definite law which makes it possible for all to heal. Jesus knew this. He said: 'Heal the sick, cleanse the lepers and cast out devils.'

"In our teachings we endeavor to embrace the fundamental principles that enable us to heal, and healing is a large part of the curriculum in the preparation for the Jesus Christ ministry, to which we ordain our students as soon as they are competent to answer any call."

There are about thirty-five rooms used for the work of the training school in Boston, Miss Mel said, one being at 111 Newbury st.

There is another branch at 1 Queensberry st. called "Home of the Healing Light."

"Here we receive patients seeking spiritual healing of body or mind," she continued. "Those confined to bed can have nurses who understand spiritual healing. We also have medical doctors who co-operate with us, while not discounting healing."

Lectures and Dancing

At Nyala Truth Camp, the order of exercises begins with breakfast at 8 a. m. This is followed by chess, water sports and fishing; noon silence, dinner, a quiet hour, reading, lectures in the amphitheater (an open area in the woods), freedom, supper, dancing and singing.

The religious exercises are being conducted by Mrs. Dorothea Pastor of Munich, Germany. Summer classes will close September 15.

There is also a summer course being conducted at the Home of Truth, Newbury st.

BODY OF MISSING NEWSBOY IN POND

The body of missing 13-year-old Charles McCall, a newsboy, of 1922 Center st., West Roxbury, was found yesterday afternoon in Bunker's pond, off Gardner st., that section, by police of Station 17. Patrolmen Perkins, Gilday and Casey, who dragged all day, located the body in 20 feet of water.

The pond, which is an old sand pit, is fed underground by the Charles river and is a favorite "swimming hole" for the boys of the neighborhood.

ROSLINDALE SAFE-BLOWERS GET $387

Crackamen entered the office of th Crown Shade and Screen Co. in Lochdale rd., Roslindale, some time between 5 o'clock Friday night and 7 o'clock yesterday morning, securing $387 from a safe.

Another safe in the same office belonging to the Atlantic Shade Co. proved invulnerable to the thieves.

When officers of the two companies opened the offices yesterday they found the combination of both safes broken.

Hot Weather Don'ts

By Dr. GEORGE H. BIGELOW, State Commissioner of Health

DON'T eat heavy meals. Hot weather foods should consist of bread or crackers and milk, vegetables or fruit salads. If you must have meat, have it served cold. Pastry, meats and sweets are heating foods.

DON'T substitute other beverages for water. Water is the most cooling drink of all and really quenches the thirst.

DON'T wear heavy clothing. Your attire should be as light as possible and as comfortable as you can make it.

DON'T let your thoughts dwell on the temperature. You are much warmer when you know it is 95 degrees than you are if you don't know what the temperature is.

DON'T work in a room without cross ventilation, if possible. Moving air, however light the movement, increases your comfort.

DON'T stay in the direct sunlight any more than is absolutely necessary.

DON'T take violent exercise. "Play" all you can.

DON'T miss a cool shower, a sponge bath or a dip in the lake or ocean every day.

YOUTH WOUNDED IN GUN ACCIDENT

Manford Marshall Kay, 17, of 34 Greenleaf st., Malden, is an expert with firearms but his love of them may cost his life.

The youth, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Kay and a member of the Malden High School rifle team, shot himself through both legs accidentally while in camp at Dunstable, N. H.

Yesterday, at Lowell General Hospital, his condition was said to be critical.

The boy went to camp Friday and went swimming. In the belt of his trunks he placed a revolver, with which he intended to practice while at the lake.

When he attempted to pull the gun out it stuck. The revolver went off, the bullet entering his right hip and coming out at the inside of the knee, only to tear into the left shin and come out at the ankle.

ON OPERATING TABLE FOR CUT THROAT, DIES

Surgeons Vainly Try to Save Life of Providence Man Who Used Razor

Fitchburg, July 19. While doctors and nurses at Burbank Hospital were preparing to take emergency measures to save his life this evening, Henry Mayne, 68, of Winthrop st., Providence, died on the operating table as a result of slashing his throat with a razor.

According to Dr. Raymond Jones, Mayne has been visiting for the last week at the home of Fred Wiewell ond the Ashburnham-Fitchburg road. This afternoon he appeared in the best of spirits. During the evening he went to the bathroom, got a razor and went to the yard in back of the house. Here he was found some time later with his throat slashed.

Dr. Jones provided first-aid treatment and Mayne was taken to the hospital.

Mayne formerly lived in Fitchburg, but had been retired for several years. In Providence he lived with his sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Gardner.

RIVER RISE ENDS MUD FLAT MENACE

Alarm of residents of Waltham, Newton and Weston over the low water mark in the Charles river has been allayed by the perceptible rising of the river level within the past few days.

Many of the mud flats along the river which were exposed when much of the water disappeared have been covered.

Mayor Patrick J. Duane of Waltham will confer with officials of two manufacturing plants on the banks of the river in an effort to induce them to reduce the drainage.

WEDS IN NUPTIAL GOWN OF MOTHER

Miss Alice W. Billings, daughter of Mrs. Louis E. Billings of Faneuil rd., Waltham, and Charles O. Makepeace of Thompson, Conn., formerly of Fall River, were married yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride's mother.

Rev. Isaiah Sneath of Wollaston officiated. The bride wore her mother's wedding gown and was attended by her sister, Beatrice. George B. Makepeace, brother of the bridegroom, was best man.

TAXI AND TROLLEY CRASH, TWO HURT

Stopping suddenly to avoid hitting a car in front of it on Elm st., Everett last night, a taxicab driven by Richard M. Cronin of Centennial ave., Revere, was crashed into by an Elevated car operated by Harry Zimmerman of Medford.

The back of the taxicab was caved in and the two men, Cronin, Richard Keating, 47, of Jackson ave., Everett, and his son, Francis, 12, were badly shaken up.

TAUSSIG NOT TO QUIT HARVARD NOW

Prof. Frank W. Taussig, internationally famous political economist, associated for nearly 30 years with Harvard, has emphatically denied a persistent rumor that he is planning to retire.

"I have no present intention of retiring," he wrote a reporter from his summer home at Cotuit.

He has been teaching at Harvard since 1882 and is scheduled for courses there this fall.

OFFICER BALKS BOY STOWAWAYS

There was much ado about stowaways last night in Lynn until three Lynn English high school boys arrived at their homes and reported that they were stowaways only until a burly and unfriendly officer tossed them off a boat in Lynn harbor.

The ship was the steamship Frieda bound for Norfolk.

Excitement started when a companion of the trio walked into Lynn police headquarters and reported that his three friends—Armand Luciano, 14, of Shepherd st.; Daniel Sullivan, 16, also of Shepherd st., and Marrullo Bovorian, 17, of Summer st., had gone down into the after-hold of the steamship just before she sailed.

Lynn police communicated with the Nahant Coast Guard station and the radio was called into play. Several colliers along the line of the Frieda's course were reached, but they were unable to obtain a response from the steamship herself.

In the midst of the excitement, the boys arrived at their home and explained they had been thrown off at the dock.

FORD MILLSTONE TO HONOR MINUTEMEN

Henry Ford has agreed to donate to the city of Waltham an ancient millstone, to be used to mark the spot at the dells at Lexington and Lincoln sts., where 123 Waltham men assembled on the morning of April 19, 1775, to march to Lexington and Concord to take part in the opening battle of the Revolutionary War.

Ford readily assented when the request for the stone was made by Dorothy Brewer Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution of Waltham.

DEMOCRATS TO IRON OUT STATE TICKET JULY 28

State Committee Calls "Conference" for Worcester in Line With Fitzgerald Plan

Behind closed doors and transoms, in windowless Myers Hall, Tremont Temple, yesterday afternoon, the Democratic state committee voted to hold a "conference" at Worcester on July 28 to discuss the party's ticket in the coming state election.

The meeting was called by and presided over by Chairman Frank J. Donahue.

It was primarily to pass upon the proposal of ex-Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, candidate for the party's nomination for governor, that a conference of leaders be called to arrange for placing the strongest ticket in the field.

Heated oratory added to the atmospheric conditions within the closed chamber. Reporters were barred but the familiar and stentorian tones of Martin M. Lomasney, the "Mahatma" of the West End, could be heard in the corridors.

ONE CANDIDATE PRESENT

He tossed a "monkey wrench" into the gathering when he announced that neither he nor his candidate (presumably Thomas C. O'Brien, former district attorney, who is a candidate for U. S. senator) would abide by the findings of the conference.

Strabo V. Claggett

He was later heard in favor of the adoption of a resolution which was eventually ruled out of order against the London naval treaty.

Mr. Lomasney was one of a few prominent Democrats at the meeting. John F. Fitzgerald was not present; Joseph R. Ely of Westfield, mentioned as a candidate for governor, was not present; nor were other candidates, except Marcus A. Coolidge of Fitchburg, aspirant for United States senator.

Mr. Ely was represented by DeWitt Dewolfe of Spencer. Joseph H. Maynard, former chairman of the Democratic city committee of Boston, was in the gathering, as were Strabo V. Claggett, former candidate for State auditor, and Mrs. Colin W. McDonald, vice-chairman of the State committee.

MANY TO ATTEND

The question of the makeup of the "conferees" took an hour or more, and amendment after amendment caused the list to include about every Democratic official in the State. It is estimated that the "conferees" will number 500 or 900.

Democratic State committee members, 142 in number, were first voted as conferees.

Democratic members of both branches of the Legislature were then added.

Then in order came:

The Democratic member of the governor's council.

Democratic congressmen and senator.

Chairmen of Democratic city and town committees.

Democratic mayors of the State.

Democratic councillors and aldermen of cities.

Chairmen of the various Democratic city and town ward committees.

Democratic county officers.

Democratic selectmen of towns in the State.

The candidates are Acting Chief Michael G. Hughes, Lieutenant-Inspectors Richard J. Goode and John H. Shaughnessy and Lieut. Joseph H. Seaver.

110TH CAVALRY NOW ON CAMP DUTY IN DEVENS

National Guard Outfit Arrives In Five Hours From Hub Armory

COL. GALLUP IN COMMAND

Entrains at North Station With 32 Officers and 386 Enlisted Men

The transition of the 110th Regiment of Cavalry, Massachusetts National Guard, from its armory on Commonwealth ave., to Camp Devens was accomplished yesterday between 7 a. m. and 12 o'clock noon.

Roll call last night found the regiment operating under a camp routine without confusion at hold-ances incidental to the change of base.

The organization left the armory under command of Col. Dana T. Gallup, and under direction of Executive Officer, Lt.-Col. P. C. Lewis, proceeded by special street cars to the North Station where it entrained for camp with a complement of 32 officers and 386 enlisted men.

At Ayer the regiment was detrained at the quartermaster siding and marched to its quarters at 4th ave. and 12th st., led by the regimental band and under direction of Warrant Officer Chester E. Whiting.

The order of the line was: Headquarters Troop, Capt. Roland A. Mangini; First Squadron Headquarters, Maj. P. L. Brown; Troop A, Capt. Robert M. Blair; Troop B, Capt. Richard E. Anthony; Second Squadron Headquarters, Maj. A. W. Smith; Troop E, Capt. Everett H. Jenkins; Troop F, Capt. Herbert N. Odell; Medical Detachment, Maj. O. L. Schofield.

The regimental horses, shipped from Niantic, Ct., were unloaded and stabled yesterday afternoon under the direction of Capt. W. H. Boswell, regimental veterinary surgeon.

The tour of duty is for 14 days.

Men of the 26th Leave Devens

Camp Devens, July 19.—The dust of this quieter ground was stirred again today by the trudging feet of the men of the 26th Division, M. N. G., on their way to their homes in and about Greater Boston, ending their annual two weeks' tour of duty.

One of the unusual ceremonies incidental to the trip homeward was the farewell taken of them and of Angeles and San Francisco.

ATTEMPT SEEN TO WRECK TRAIN

Methuen, July 19.—Police Chief Harry Nimmo is co-operating with Boston & Maine detectives in an endeavor to arrest those responsible for what is believed to have been a deliberate attempt to wreck a passenger train this afternoon.

A large piece of rock was wedged into a switch on the Boston-to-Manchester main line, just above Lowell st., which, had it not been observed in time by the engineer of an incoming train, would have put the cars into the ditch.

The train, bearing several hundred passengers, had slowed down on approaching the switch, preparatory to discharging several passengers here. The engineer noticed the spiked switch, stopped the train and removed the obstruction.

MARY LEWIS, former Follies beauty and Metropolitan opera star, who has filed her second suit for divorce

MARY LEWIS IS SEEKING DIVORCE

Los Angeles, July 19 (INS)—Mary Lewis, former Follies' beauty and Metropolitan Opera star, today had on file here a suit for divorce from Michael Bohnen, also an opera singer, her second legal complaint against him in two years.

Miss Lewis is engaged in talking picture work in Hollywood.

Her first suit was dismissed after notice, however, that divorce had entered into the "ideal marriage" contracted in New York, April 14, 1927.

In the complaint on record today, Miss Lewis charged Bohnen deserted her July 1, 1929.

OWEN D. YOUNG AT NUPTIALS OF HIS NIECE

Mary Edmonds Becomes Bride of John A. Day of Hub in Wellesley

Miss Mary Edmonds, niece of Owen D. Young, internationally known author of the Young reparations plan, became the bride in Wellesley yesterday of John Arthur Day of Boston.

Her uncle and Mrs. Young were prominent among the 150 guests who attended the services at St. Andrew's Episcopal Church, and the informal reception which followed at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Howard Edmonds, 27 Atwood st., Wellesley.

Old-fashioned charm distinguished the wedding where bride and matron and maids of honor wore long, flounced gowns suggestive of another day.

The bride herself wore a gown of white point d'esprit and net. Her long net veil was caught up here and there with orange blossoms, she carried a shower bouquet of white sweet peas and lilies of the valley.

Her sister, Mrs. John R. Stalford, of New York, who attended her as matron of honor, wore an afternoon gown of beige lace, a picture hat of lavender horsehair with slippers to match, and carried an old-fashioned corsage.

Her bridesmaids, the Misses Josephine Young of New York and Margaret Williamson of Norwood, wore primrose organdie, deeply flounced and very long, and green horsehair picture hats and slippers to match.

Clark Edmonds of Wellesley, brother of the bride, acted as best man. The single ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Leigh R. Urban, rector of the church.

Ushers were Allyn Wicks of Newton Centre, Ransom F. Hodges of Boston, Richard F. F. Nichols of Cambridge, and James Campbell of Lake Placid.

Mr. and Mrs. Owen D. Young came on from New York Friday to attend the wedding. Their son, Charles Young, flew up from Philadelphia in the morning in time to attend the festivities.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Day are graduates of St. Lawrence University in Canton, N. Y., of which Mr. Young is another alumnus.

TIPSTERS BAT FOR A ZERO IN GARRETT HUNT

Heat Blamed for Inactivity as Search Enters on 27th Day

Garrett tipsters batted for zero yesterday. Not a flash came to police headquarters as to the whereabouts of the elusive ex-liquor raider.

The heat is blamed for the inactivity of tipsters as the hunt for the fugitive from justice entered its 27th day.

Ten members of the old liquor squad, which Garrett headed for years, are ready to arrest him on sight, so they yesterday told Asst. Corporation Counsel Lee Schwartz.

Questioning of the 10 men came in the course of Schwarz's seeking information in the Breen case, involving the petition for an injunction restraining the police from raiding and maintaining a watch over premises at 358 and 358-A Tremont st., owned by Breen.

Garrett never raided the premises, it was testified during the present hearing before a master on the petition, and Schwartz's questioning of the members of the old squad delved into this feature.

Ninety-seven cities, towns and immigration stations on the Maine, Vermont and New Hampshire border have been combed by detectives employed by Dist. Atty. Foley, according to his statement yesterday, with not a single clue.

The detectives are working their way south, it was stated.

SEEKS PERMIT TO IGNORE RED LIGHTS

An excited motorist of middle age rushed into Quincy police station yesterday, informed Lieut. Edward Johnson that his mother was seriously ill at Skowhegan, Me., and requested a permit to allow him to drive past red traffic lights en route to that city.

Lieut. Johnson told him the police could not give such permission and he left without making known his identity.

OLD ANCHOR OF KEARSARGE HONORS NAVY

Tops Memorial on Strandway Presented to City by Veterans of '61

MEN OF 3 WARS THERE

Mayor Curley Accepts Shaft; Speeches by Old Soldiers; Women Place Wreaths

Representatives of the G. A. R. Navy Department, Spanish War Veterans, American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars participated in the dedication of the Kearsarge Memorial at Strandway flagpole, South Boston, yesterday.

The monument was accepted on behalf of the city by Mayor Curley.

With Edward A. Dixon, commander of the Kearsarge Association, acting as master of ceremonies, presentation of the monument to the city was made by David King, 88, oldest veteran of the navy and boatswain of the association. It was unveiled by Miss Agnes E. Barry prior to the appearance by Mayor Curley.

The monument consists of a square granite base upon which is mounted the anchor of the Kearsarge. The inscription reads:

"In memory of the men who served in the Navy during the Civil War, 1861 to 1865, in honor of the members who served in the Navy during the Spanish American War and the World War this memorial is erected by the Kearsarge Association of Naval Veterans, 1930."

Wreaths were placed upon the monument by Mrs. A. Bateman on behalf of the Kearsarge Auxiliary, and Mrs. Ethel Browne, president of Tent 36, Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War.

The opening prayer was by James Kerrigan, ensign, U. S. N. R. F.

Lieut.-Gov. William S. Youngman delivered the Commonwealth's tribute to the men who served in the navy. Other speakers were Chairman John W. McCormack, Emory G. Grosswold, senior vice commander, United Spanish War Veterans; Alvin C. Howes, commander, State Department, G. A. R.; Clement Norton, representing the Department of Massachusetts of the American Legion, and P. D. Carey, representing the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

PARISHIONERS TO OBSERVE BIRTHDAY

Parishioners of the Holy Name Church, West Roxbury, will celebrate the third birthday of the parish tomorrow evening at Mooney's-on-the-Charles.

A committee, under James T. Towhill, has arranged for fireworks, dancing, whist and bridge.

Rev. William P. McGuinness, pastor, announced the following committee in charge of the affair: Dr. Eugene McDonough, William L. Hogarty, John P. Englert, William P. Long, Aloysius J. Mahoney, Patrick M. Kelleher, James J. Kazan, J. Paul Canty, Frank W. Kelley, J. Irving Block, John Cox, John D. Lynch, John McDonald and Miss Lillian Horrigan.

MILTON KNIGHTS HOLD AN OUTING

Milton Lodge, Knights of Pythias, held its annual outing yesterday at Cunningham Park, Milton, and more than 300 members, their wives and children participated.

A ball game between the married and single men was won by the former, 18 to 8.

In the evening there was an entertainment, with dancing. John Reader was chairman of the committee.

INTREPID MAKES ENGLAND IN 12 DAYS

The Intrepid, a backentine auxiliary yacht recently built at Lawley shipyards, has just completed a voyage across the Atlantic in 12 days, according to a cablegram received yesterday at Neponset.

The voyage was a trial trip for the craft, which had on board as designer, Arthur P. Raymond. The boat was built at Southampton, Eng., by her owner, Walter T. Murphy of Chicago, who will make the return trip aboard the yacht.

JOHNSON IS NAMED OFFICIAL GREETER

Thomas A. J. Johnson has been appointed official greeter for Boston, it was announced yesterday.

He is a friend of Mayor Curley, and is considered to be one of the wealthiest of the Beacon Hill residents. He is a bachelor and lives in Mt. Vernon pl. and has a summer home which is one of the show places in Magnolia.

The property is assessed for $10,000, mainly on the land. The selling price has been fixed at not less than $10,800.

Stork Nears

DUCHESS OF YORK, who is expected daily to give birth to a child, a future British king.

STORK TO VISIT GHOSTLY CASTLE

By ROBERT WELLES RITCHIE

London, July 19. It may be that within 10 days a future King of England will be born in a ghost-haunted castle, one which possesses an inclosed dungeon, the secret of which is known only to the successive Earls of Strathmore.

The Duchess of York, who expects to become the mother of a possible heir to the English throne some time in the last week of this month, is now at her ancestral castle at Glamis.

Should the Prince of Wales never marry, her child, if a son, would be the "heir presumptive" to the throne of Great Britain.

Glamis has its goose-flesh legends. It is said that on every midsummer's night—June 24—the ghost of a former Countess of Strathmore, Lady Margaret Bowes-Lyon who was one of the Duchess of York's ancestresses, runs screaming down the long gallery at Glamis, opens a window and leaps into the darkness.

The room which the Duchess of York occupied before her marriage has been prepared for her, at her request.

The chamber is dominated by an old Jacobean four-poster bed, frequently used by Sonny Prince Charles during his visits to the Earl of Strathmore of his time. This room has been decorated in the Duchess's favorite green, and is completely infurnished with antique oak furniture.

Adjoining it is a dressing-room which will be used for the expected baby and the nurse. A nursery suite for Princess Elizabeth, 4, has been fitted up on the same floor.

The Countess of Strathmore, mother of the Duchess, who awaits the event at the castle, recently has had the ancient stronghold fitted with electricity. In the Duchess' room are old brass shields to hold the new wall light.

Atlantic City, N. J., July 19 (AP)—A resolution calling upon Congress to pass the bill introduced by Congressman Andrew of Massachusetts to correct and publish all war records was adopted today by the United States Army Ambulance Corps as it closed a conference here.

Albert E. Herrmann of Philadelphia, was elected national commander of the corps.

JERSEY FLIERS OUT TO BEAT HUNTERS

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., July 19 (AP)—Robert Black and Louis Reickert of Arlington, N. J., went aloft at 8:39 a. m. (EST) today in an assault on the refueling endurance flight record held by the Hunter brothers of Illinois. They are flying a monoplane with a fuel capacity of 120 gallons.

A second endurance plane piloted by Jack Charleson and Tex Andrus will take off tomorrow morning.

AUTO INJURY KILLS JAMES H. TORMEY

James H. Tormey, 55, of 20 Clinton pl. Cambridge, died yesterday at Haymarket Relief Hospital from injuries sustained Thursday when he was struck by an automobile in Main st., Charlestown.

The automobile is declared by police to have been operated by Severio Dei Ninno of Harvard st., Medford.

MORGAN SENDS HIS WORKERS TO REST IN MAINE CAMP

New York, July 19 (AP).

WHILE J. P. MORGAN is vacationing in the British Isles many of his employes and their families will be enjoying themselves as his guests at Camp Eliot Bacon, in the Maine woods.

The camp is near Flagstaff, Me., about 45 miles from the Canadian border, and consists of several hundred acres bordering on a lake. Housing quarters are provided in a large structure for camp executives, and in smaller detached cottages for the families of Mr. Morgan's employes.

3 NEW DEATHS AS HEAT HOLDS GRIP ON NATION

Brief Relief by Showers to Be Followed by a Returning Hot Wave Tomorrow

a fisherman. He is at City hospital, Worcester.

While wading along the shore of Lake Quinsigamond, Worcester, Anthony Maranta, 7, of Norfolk st., Worcester, got beyond his depth and was drowned.

The body was recovered by lifesavers, who worked over it for an hour, in vain.

THUNDERSTORMS IN MAKING.

Indications pointed to showers. The forecast for Boston and vicinity is "not quite so warm." Moderate southwest winds are expected to shift to the northwest and thunderstorms are in the making.

The same general forecast holds for New England with cool weather everywhere except on the coast of Maine, east.

Death reports thus far were: Boston 3; Worcester, 3; Chicopee, 1; Detroit, New York, St. Louis, Cedar Rapids, Ia., 1; Winchester, Ill., Pittsburgh, 1 each; Southern California, 8; Albany, 4; Lowell, 1; Omaha, 1; western Pennsylvania and Virginia, 2.

High temperatures reported yesterday were: Omaha, Neb., 106; Lincoln, Neb., 103; Beatrice, Neb., 110; Canton, Ill., 102; St. Louis, Chicago, 100; Atlantic, Ia., 103; Des Moines, Ia., 104; Kansas City, 102; Adrian, Mich., 101; Springfield, Ill., 99; Detroit, 95.

New York 96, Baltimore 99, Philadelphia 97, Peoria, Ill., 96; Charleston, W. Va., 103; Jefferson City, Mo., 96; New Orleans 84; Little Rock, Ark. 84.

Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Tennessee and Kentucky reported temperatures ranging from 92 to 96.

Charlottesville, Va., had a temperature of 102, and Bristol, Tenn., 100.

In Omaha, where the temperature rose to 106, the Catholic bishop has asked that prayers be offered up in all the churches today for rain to save the crop.

While Sacramento, capital of California, sweltered under 104 degrees, San Francisco kept cool with 61. Seattle, Wash., also enjoyed a mild low temperature. San Diego, Cal., reported 71; Los Angeles 80, Spokane, Wash., 68; Portland, Ore., 64.

Kansas City, despite the terrific heat, has reported no deaths. No relief is looked for in that section.

Farmers in the West are being seriously hampered. Large crews have been dropping in the fields and the crops are being neglected.

In New York there were many prostrations. Children in the tenement districts for the most part were little but human forms. Created by the heat, a man of 30 strolled the streets stark naked. He was taken to a hospital.

In New England, in addition to the heat deaths due directly to the heat, there were seven drownings, of persons who sought relief in the water.

The Boston temperature has hovered close to the record mark for July, in 1900, when the glass reached 95.

MORE HEAT MONDAY.

Boston's high mark last Summer was 99 on the Sunday before Labor Day.

The hottest day in the records of the local weather bureau was on July 4, 1911, when the thermometer reached 104, with many deaths and prostrations.

High marks in the present threeday heat wave in Boston were: 91 on Thursday, 94 on Friday, both in the late afternoon.

With department stores in the city closed, as on past Saturdays during the month, there was little traffic into the city. Trains carried few passengers. Traffic was away from and not to the Hub.

At Deer Island Light yesterday the temperature was a bit above 70 and at Highland Light, Cape Cod, six degrees cooler. Moderate southwest winds prevailed.

The weatherman, though predicting probable showers to break the heat wave looks for a return of the hot weather Monday.

Humidity at 72 p. m. yesterday was to blame for the uncomfortable conditions that drove men to hatless and coatless attire.

The big exodus to the beaches and country that started in the early morning lessened during noon when the skies became overcast, with prospects of rain.

SAN BRUNO OFF FOR 'VAGABOND' CRUISE

Carrying her usual capacity here the United Fruit liner San Bruno, Capt. Irving, sailed yesterday noon from Long wharf on a "vagabond" cruise to Havana, Cuba, and Puerto Castilla and Tela, Honduras.

RADIOS 'TIPPED' RUM SMUGGLERS

New York, July 19 (AP)—Seven men, arrested in the seizure of three "outlaw" radio stations on Long Island, believed to have been used by liquor runners, today were held in $7500 bail each for hearing August 1 on charges of violating the Volstead act and operating unlicensed radios.

Joseph H. Wickert, wealthy retired shoe manufacturer of Mattituck; Peter Wyckoff, a road house proprietor, also of Mattituck, and Patrick Fitzgerald of the Bronx were held on the Volstead charge. Alonzo M. Corndell of East Hampton, Robert Vernon and E. J. Blake of Southampton and Esm Schwarz of the Bronx were accused of operating the "outlaw" stations.

Twenty-five treasury agents, federal radio engineers and county sheriffs conducted the raids on three apparently respectable homes last night.

They said the unlicensed stations were communicating with Scotland in aiding ships in transport liquor to the United States.

4 GO TO CHAIR IN JERSEY THIS WEEK

Trenton, N. J., July 19 (INS)—Preparations were being made at the State Prison here tonight for the second quadruple electrocution since the death chair was put into use in this State in 1907. Four men will die sometime next week for the slaying of a Newark bus station cashier during a holdup in 1928.

The men are Joseph Rado, 27; Victor Giampietro, 23; Louis Marlanga, 22 and John Murray, better known as "The Jersey Kid."

SITE SELECTED FOR NEWTON CIVIC GROUP

Ground will be broken next spring for construction of a new city hall and war memorial on the so-called "triangle site" at Commonwealth ave., Walnut and Homer sts., Newton Centre, according to plans made at a joint meeting on aldermanic and citizens' committees on the project.

It was decided that police headquarters will be housed in a separate building.

GERMANY PLANS A NEW ELECTION

Berlin, July 19 (INS)—Political Germany was active today as preparations were launched for a national election campaign following dissolution of the Reichstag yesterday, after it had rejected Chancellor Bruening's finance decrees by a vote of 236 to 221.

The new elections, it was announced by the government, will be held September 14. The constitution requires that the Reichstag parliament convene within 30 days of that date.

AVIATORS FLY HOME TO SPEND WEEK-END

Lieut. E. A. Parker, with Privates John Talbot, flew to Keene, N. H., late yesterday afternoon in a PT-1.

Lieut. M. H. Fay of Winchester flew an O1-E here for a week-end at home. Sergt. E. L. Gregg was passenger.

Lieut. W. P. Cogshell flew a navy plane here from Anacostia, D. C., with Lieut. T. C. Ragan.

Seth Heywood flew his Moth to Marston's Mills for a week-end there.

CADETS GO INTO CAMP ON CAPE

The First Corps of Cadets, with full ranks left Columbus ave. armory yesterday for their annual tour of camp duty at Camp Edmands Sandwich. This is the third consecutive year for the First Corps at Camp Edmands, where they will remain two weeks.

The march from the armory to the South Station was observed by thousands of admiring spectators. The men were under command of Lieut.-Col. Horace Z. Landon, who will retire this year as head of the organization and from active military life.

First Corps official staff includes Maj. Harry L. Spencer, Capt. Leroy E. Perkins, Capt. Oscar C. Bohlin, Lieut. Roy H. Townsend and Lieut. Joseph S. Robinson.

Next Saturday, July 26, has been fixed upon as veterans' day at the camp, when it is expected that many former members of the corps will be entertained.

FOSTER QUERIED ON LINGLE DEATH GUN

Chicago, July 19 (INS)—Frankie Foster, under indictment for the murder of Alfred J. Lingle, Chicago Tribune reporter, was returned to Chicago today from Los Angeles.

Spirited into a downtown office building, Foster then started to answer questions of investigators as to why Foster's revolver was found beside the body of the reporter.

Authorities believe Foster had nothing to do with the actual slaying of Lingle.

ANOTHER WEEK OF MUSIC FEAST ON ESPLANADE

Six Symphony Concerts Already given Have Attracted 60,000

By ALEX WARBURTON.

The Charles River Esplanade concerts begin their second week tonight, following a half dozen concerts in the first week remarkably attended.

With almost perfect weather favoring the playing of the programs, it is estimated that more than 60,000 persons have attended thus far, an average of about 10,000 for each night. This is far in excess of the numbers attracted during the opening week last year.

From all indications, interest will increase rather than decrease in these free outdoor concerts, which are being given every night except Saturday for six weeks.

The orchestra of 30 Boston Symphony players under Arthur Fiedler, playing programs of classical and light compositions, provides a contributory feature to Boston's tercentenary celebration, although not officially connected with it.

Although the majority of the players were imported from European musical centers for employment in the Boston Symphony Orchestra, it is interesting to note that 12 of the players were born in this country, in addition to the conductor himself. Nineteen others are naturalized citizens, and most of the remainder are planning to become American citizens.

The program for tonight includes Berlioz' "Rakoczy" March, Nicolai's Overture, "Merry Wives of Windsor," the prize song from Wagner's "Meistersinger," the third movement from Chaikovsky's "Pathetique" symphony, a fantasia from Saint-Saens' "Samson and Delilah," Handel's "Largo," Glazounov's Spanish suite, "Paradise," and the entrance of the guests into the Wartburg from Wagner's "Tannhauser."

Other features for the week include Chaikovsky's "Nutcracker" suite on Monday, Liszt's "Les Preludes" on Wednesday, a second movement from Brahm's Fourth Symphony on Thursday and Goldmark's "Sakuntala" overture on Friday.

Gen. Dunn Is President of Famous Regiment of Spanish-American War Day

NOTED SOLDIERS SPEAK

Only Surviving Divisional Commander Among Guests at Pemberton Dinner

The 32nd anniversary of the capture of Santiago, Cuba, was celebrated yesterday at the Pemberton Inn, Pemberton, by members of the Ninth Massachusetts Volunteers.

Gen. J. H. Dunn

More than 200 persons enjoyed a shore dinner served at the inn, following which they were entertained with addresses from men prominent in military affairs of the day and a few of those in command during the Spanish-American War.

Maj.-Gen. Samuel S. Sumner, U. S. A., retired, the only surviving divisional commander in the Cuban campaign and commander of the division in which the late President Roosevelt was a cavalry officer, was present.

Others prominent in military and civic affairs who were guests of the volunteers were: Gen. John J. Sullivan, Lieut-Gen. Edward L. Logan, Capt. James Lydon, Mayor Thomas J. O'Hara of Worcester, Henry P. Fielding, former assistant district attorney, and Maj. Asa Phelps of the U. S. customs department.

Officers elected included: Gen. John H. Dunn, president; Timothy W. Kelley and Maj. Thomas F. Quinlan, vice-presidents; Col. Thomas F. Sullivan, secretary, and Morris J. Power, treasurer. Mayor Curley was elected an honorary member of the volunteers.

HUB MEN TO JOIN TOUR FOR RESEARCH

A large representation from the New England Council will be among the invited guests on a tour of inspection to be held under the sponsorship of the National Research Council, lasting from Oct. 7 to Oct. 15, inclusive.

The announced purpose of the tour is to give industrial executives and bankers an intimate view of what is being done in the laboratories of many of the great concerns of the country, to the end of a closer co-operation between financial and industrial interests.

A party of about 200 is to leave New York on a special train, and the itinerary includes Schenectady, Detroit, Dayton, Pittsburgh and Washington.

USHER CLUB OUTING SET FOR JULY 27

St. Margaret's Usher Club has decided on Sunday, July 27, for its first outing, at Ridge Hill Grove, Norwell.

Beside a number of entertainment features there are to be races and a baseball game between teams that include Dist. Atty. William Foley, Congressman John W. McCormack, Eddie Carroll, Senator Joseph Mulhern, Maj. William Lynch, president of the Boston City Council, and Representative John Reardon.

The outing committee is headed by Chairman Charles C. Cassidy and will be assisted by a women's committee headed by Mrs. Tabor.

SLAYER SUSPECT IS QUIZZED AT CAPITAL

New York, July 19—Smiling and unperturbed, Herman Henry Barrere, wandering painter, was taken today to Washington, D. C., to be questioned concerning the murder last winter of Mary Baker, stenographer.

Barrere was arrested in Montreal with Marion Madeline Jarrel of Philadelphia when he walked into a police station to complain of the theft of $50 he had given a man to buy liquor. The young woman was brought to New York with him and then released. Barrere says he knows nothing about the murder.

FLOOD STARTS AS AUTO HITS HYDRANT

Thoroughfares in the Pond st. section of Jamaicaway were flooded with water yesterday when a motorist crashed his car into a hydrant snapping the plug off at its base.

Little damage resulted from the accident and water officials when notified quickly shut off the flow from the broken hydrant.

The offending automobile was operated, police say, by Hollis C. Beatty, of Linwood st., Somerville.

COLONY STORY IN MARKERS AT HISTORIC SITES

Tercentenary Commission Already Has Designated 75 of 277 Places

Historical markers erected by the State Tercentenary Commission through its vice-chairman, Frank Roe Batchelder, have now been placed at 75 of the 277 places which played a leading part in the history of the original Massachusetts Bay Colony.

By August 15 the remaining famous spots in the old colony will be similarly marked.

The story of the famous Bay Colony will be read by the thousands of visitors to the State during the year through the new markers placed in conspicuous points along the main highways and which are brightly painted in a field of black with aluminum colored letters.

The State seal at the tip is done in the tercentenary colors, blue and gold. The message is written on both sides and placed at a height that it is at an even range of vision for motorists.

EDITED BY PROF. MORISON

The remaining inscriptions have all been written and are being stamped on the markers to be placed on the eastbon posts which are fast being cemented along roadsides and in fields under supervision of the State Department of Public Works. In the original Plymouth County several others are being erected, but are to be paid for by the respective city or town, as they do not come within the area of the Bay Colony.

Prof. Samuel E. Morison, of the history department at Harvard and historical adviser of the commission, passed upon and edited each of the 277 inscriptions.

The commission received suggestions as to places which had figured in history between 1620 and 1750, after they had written to historians and to librarians. Mr. Batchelder and Prof. Morison weeded out 277 of the more than 500 suggestions received.

OLD READING MARKER

Markers which designate historical sites or houses and those which are known as town markers are nearly evenly divided. A typical marker for a house is the one which is located in Reading and which refers to the Old Parker Tavern. It reads:

"One-eighth of a mile to 'the simple home of an ordinary man, not wealthy, not particularly distinguished, but a type of the God-fearing yeomanry'. As Ephraim Parker left it, it remains to-day an unchanged relic in the midst of a changing world."

On Old Bay road in Wenham is a town marker which reads:

"Settled about 1638, called Enon, because there was much water there. (St. John II.33). Set off from Salem and name changed to Wenham 1642."

COLT MILLIONS MOVE TO OUST OLD 'SQUATTER'

Cap'n Thompson for 27 Years Has Lived in Cottage He Floated Down River to Bristol

Providence, July 19—There seems to be no end to the tangled skein of litigation that has been woven into the estate of the late Samuel P. Colt, rubber magnate and banker who died nearly 10 years ago.

The latest knot to be untied concerns the squatter rights of Capt. Frederick G. Thompson.

The veteran seaman, in 1903, floated a tiny cottage home to a site at the foot of Asylum rd in Bristol. Now, although Thompson has lived in the cottage for 27 years, the trustee of the Colt estate wants him to move.

Asylum rd. is controlled by the Colt estate; in fact it is a winding road that cuts through the big estate that borders Narragansett Bay.

CAPTAIN TO FIGHT

Just when the Industrial Trust Co. will ask for a court hearing is not known, but Capt. Thompson, sensing the power of the big financial institution, did not intend to be caught napping. He engaged Atty-Gen. Benjamin McLyman to protect his rights.

The Colt estate is one of the show places of New England, maintained by a trust fund established for that purpose by the rubber magnate. It is to be held intact and kept up for the use of the Colt heirs, among them Ethel Barrymore, famous actress, and her children.

For nearly 20 years Capt. Thompson lived in his little cottage as a neighbor of the wealthy Col. Colt. They were firm friends and Col. Colt was a frequent visitor to the cottage.

FLOATS HOME DOWN RIVER

Two years after the death of the rubber magnate, caretakers of the estate intimated that Capt. Thompson had no legal right to remain on the site. They suggested many times that he move.

Twenty-seven years ago Capt. Thompson lost a sloop in the upper reaches of the bay. He decided to live ashore.

He constructed a raft of planks and barrels and on the raft he built a cottage 12 by 24 feet.

After finishing the cottage, Capt. Thompson floated it down the Providence river and into the bay. He had picked the site at the foot of Asylum rd. in Bristol and after considerable difficulty he finally landed his craft at that point.

He picked a site far out from high-water mark, drove piles to support his home and then, with the aid of a high tide floated the house onto the piles.

LINKED WITH MAINLAND

"It was only natural," said Atty. Gen. McLyman, "that the tides should eddy about the piles. The flotsam of the bay collected and in a few years Capt. Thompson's house was high and dry on a small island. Soon the island was actually attached to the mainland, and Capt. Thompson had an estate, one of the most picturesque on the bay.

"It seems strange that Col. Colt never objected, and it seems very strange indeed that an objection should be made at this late date.

"There can be no question concerning the friendship that existed between Capt. Thompson and Col. Colt. The latter hired the seaman to care for sloops on the estate. Compensation for this work ceased when Mr. Colt died, but Capt. Thompson still continues to care for two statues that were favorites of Col. Colt."

CUNARD ANNIVERSARY OBSERVED TONIGHT

The 90th anniversary of the arrival of the first transatlantic passenger liner at the port of Boston, the Cunarder Britannia, will be celebrated tonight when the Cunarder Laconia, Capt. Michael Doyle, docks at East Boston from Queenstown and Liverpool.

Flying the international code, with the Massachusetts Bay Colony flag at her forepeak, the Laconia will be escorted up the harbor by U. S. Coast Guard vessels, two city of Boston fireboats, airplanes, city officials and a 20-piece band.

FLYING PRIEST OFF TO ALASKA

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., July 19 (INS)—The "Flying Jesuits" hopped off for the Pacific Coast today at 1:45 p. m. on the first leg of a journey to Alaska.

The specially constructed airplans, the Marquette, carried Bro. George Feltes, a Jesuit of San Francisco, who was at the stick; the Very Rev. Philip DeLoy Superior of the Jesuit Missions in Alaska, and George R. Pickenpack, co-pilot.

The flight will end at Holy Cross, Alaska, 400 miles up the Yukon river.

Most of the people the priest will serve are Eskimos and Indians. It will be possible for Bro. Feltes to cove his parish population of 500,000 in about two weeks. With a dog team, it takes about six months.

$50,000,000 LOSS, 70 DIE IN TYPHOON

Tokio, July 19 (AP)—Still counting dead and injured and adding up property losses as rapidly as faltering communication lines could report them, Japan and Korea today set about rehabilitating regions visited yesterday by the worst typhoon in a generation.

The storm swept over the Loochoo Islands, Kiusiu Island, across the inland sea from the main island of Japan and into Korea at a velocity reaching 100 miles an hour.

Seventy persons were known to have been killed in Kiushiu, 37 of whom were in Nagasaki prefecture and 17 in Fukuoka prefecture.

Injured in Japan had reached 737 and more than 100 were missing. Officials estimated 4200 houses were destroyed and 13,000 damaged.

Damage estimates ran as high as 100,000,000 yen ($50,000,000). This included damage to shipping.

RACIAL GROUPS AT MUSIC AND DANCE FEAST

German and Swedish Program Given in Symphony Hall

A TERCENTENARY FEATURE

Festival to Close Wednesday Night; Thousands in Attendance

Decorated with the multi-colored flags of the co-operating nationalities, Symphony Hall presented a brilliant picture yesterday for the German afternoon and Swedish evening of the racial group celebration in connection with the Tercentenary.

Capt. S. M. Zartarian

Colorful costumes predominated on stage as well, where both groups gave gymnastic and dancing exhibitions. With the exception of incidental music, the Germans in the afternoon restricted themselves to this type of program, reserving a pretentious musical program for later.

There was a large variety of drills—from tap dancing to acrobatics, from the gyrations of a child, who looked no more than six, to aesthetic dancing and tableaux

The program was under the direction of Edwin T. Koenig, physical director. Jacob Reiss was chairman of the committee. The skilful and artistic efforts of the young men and ladies were applauded by an appreciative audience.

BYRD AIDE SPEAKER

In the evening the Swedish-Americans presented an even more elaborate program. Beginning with music under the direction of Rafaele Martino, the program listed successively a Viking made chorus in three numbers, led by August Hulten; folk dances in costume, songs by Selma Johanson DeCoster and a grand finale—"America the Beautiful."

A feature in the middle of the program was an address by Lieut. Charles E. Lofgren, secretary to Admiral Byrd. The chairman of the Swedish group committee, which had charge of the program, was G. A. Sandberg.

The German group has arranged a pretentious choral program for this afternoon. Five hundred voices are coming from 17 cities and towns of New England to take part in the festivities. In addition to numbers in which the massed chorus will be heard, there will be singing by separate societies as well. Martin Albrecht and N. E. Sangerbund are in featured numbers. A German orchestra will accompany the singers.

ARMENIAN PAGEANT

In the evening the Armenians, one of the oldest of civilized peoples, have their night. The celebration is in the nature of a combined pageant and concert. The pageant will give an outline history, going back several centuries.

The musical part of the program is largely divided between a chorus of 100 voices under the direction of G. Suni, and the orchestra. A feature will be the singing of Mme. Rose Zutalian, prominent local contralto. Other soloists will be Levon Vartanian, pianist, and Miss Siracpe Kondayan, violinist. The majority of the musical compositions are composed or arranged by Mr. Suni.

ARTS AND CRAFTS EXHIBIT

Mrs. William Lowell Putnam is the general chairman of the racial group committee which is sponsoring and arranging this interesting Tercentenary contribution. The executive secretary and treasurer is Capt. Sarkis M. Zartarian, an inspector at the registry of motor vehicles and World War veteran.

One of the most important parts of the celebration at Symphony Hall is a remarkable exhibit of arts and crafts, to which the various racial groups have contributed.

Some of the works of art are hundreds of years old, with a long and engrossing "human interest" story behind them, while some are most recent mechanical inventions such as a silent policeman, the product of a Swede.

The events for the rest of the festival, which has been in progress since last Monday night and closes on Wednesday evening, are as follows:

Monday evening, Lettish and Lithuanian concerts. These two nationalities, neighbors and friends across the sea, have combined for a program. The Lithuanians will give a concert under the direction of Vincent A. Jenkins, which will feature their contribution to the field of choral music. Several numbers will be given by the combined Ausrole and Gabija Choirs.

WAILING WALL BOARD ENDS ITS INQUIRY

Jerusalem, July 19 (AP)—The commission, which has been in session here in an endeavor to bring about an Arab-Moslem agreement over the Wailing Wall, held its final meeting today.

The delegates departed for their various countries tonight, ready to meet again after three weeks, possibly at Geneva, to draw up their report.

TODAY

Friday increased by a total of 60,000,000 pounds (!291,600,000) the fund to relieve the unemployed. Such a program would fill us with righteous, anti-Bolshevik indignation here.

They have only 1,900,000 unemployed in Britain. We have twice that number.

Ardent prohibitionists will be delighted to hear that Zaro Agha, the Turk, who says he is 156 years old and is probably more than 100, has never taken an alcoholic drink in his life. Reckless "antis" will reply, "but who wants to be a Turk 156 years old?" The 900-year-old Gallapagos turtle never had a drink either.

LEVERS' OUTING ATTRACTS 1500

Employes and their friends, numbering more than 1500, of the Lever Brothers Co., enjoyed the 14th annual outing at Norumbega Park yesterday.

Leaving South Station by special train, the party paraded from Riverside to the park to band music. Golf was the event of the morning, and the feature of the afternoon was the annual baseball game between the office and the works, the latter winning, 2 to 1.

Dancing was enjoyed in the New Totem Pole Ballroom.

Winners of the field and track events included:

Obstacle Golf—Men: first, Leo Bartell; second, Elvin Henderson, 16. Women: first, Mary A. Riney, 34; second, Mary Curran, 50; third, Isabel Dempster, 58.

Hoop Race for Girls—First, M. Ford; second, A. Gallagher.

KING CAROL AND QUEEN MAKE UP

Bucharest, July 19 (AP)—King Carol and Queen Helen of Rumania rode out to Curtea de Arges today to a requiem memorial for King Ferdinand, Carol's father, and there for the time being, at least, put away the marital troubles which had separated them since the Crown Prince chose a path away from the mother of his little son, Michael.

Appearing for a journey together for the first time in public, the royal couple were believed by the populace, which had awaited such a gesture, to have composed the last of their differences.

BASEBALL GAME OUTING FEATURE

Officials and employes of The Shepard Stores yesterday enjoyed the annual outing of the firm at Lake Pearl, Wrentham, under direction of the Mutual Aid Association.

Shortly after 9 o'clock buses and private cars lined up in front of the Tremont st. entrance to the store to take the employes to the lake.

All expenses of the outing and transportation were borne by the store at the direction of John Shepard 3d, president of both the firm and the Mutual Aid Association.

Shortly after their arrival at the resort a program of outdoor sports was indulged in, which featured a baseball contest between executives and non-executives.

Luncheon was provided and an orchestra entertained those who did not participate in the sporting contests.

The committee on arrangements included: Mrs. Mary A. Unack, H. M. Uline, Mrs. Ethel Merrell, Miss Katherine Donovan, Ben D. Black, Edgar Gengenbach, John Novak, Roy Harlow, Miss Dorothy Connors, Merritt Thompson, William Madden, Harry Rosenthal, Mrs. Louise Harriden, Mrs. Florence McLoughlin and Fred Harkins.

MRS. SHIPWRECK CALLS ON SITTER

Atlantic City, N. J., July 19—Tired of looking up to her husband, Mrs. Alvin (Shipwreck) Kelly was hauled to the top of the steel pole on which her mate has been sitting for 28 days today.

But before her short visit, Kelly had a manicure girl come up to make him presentable.

WORK STARTS ON BELMONT'S POLICE HOME

Ground Broken for the $100,000 Headquarters Building Opposite the Town Hall

Belmont is finding she must pay high for her 100 per cent increase in population and popularity.

Because violations of certain laws have increased in proportion to the increase in the other things, the town finds it necessary to begin the construction of a new police headquarters, ground for which was broken yesterday.

BUILDING COST $100,000

The new building, plans for which were drawn by H. Thaxter Underwood, is to cost Belmont $100,000. It is to be a companion building for the Belmont town hall, designed 50 years ago by H. H. Richardson, the architect who prepared the plans for the Trinity Church, Boston.

"Since the town hall was built, soon after the Civil War, the police headquarters and the town "lock-up" have been in its basement.

Until within the past few years two cells, one for men and one for women, have sufficed to house Belmont's malefactors. But, according to Chief John J. O'Brien and his force of 29, those days are gone forever.

MODERN BUILDING

The new building is to be an ultra-modern structure of Queen Anne colonial style and built of Harvard pressed brick. The location is at the corner of Concord and Pleasant sts., opposite the town hall at Belmont Center.

On the main floor, besides the guard room and offices for the chief, lieutenant and sergeant, will be 10 cells, three of which will be for women. On this floor will also be an accident ward for the administration of first-aid, and photographic and finger-print rooms, none of which equipment the department has ever had.

The basement will be devoted to a three-car garage and large drill room, while in a sub-basement will be a 90-foot pistol range, the entire length of the building. The second floor will be devoted to recreation rooms, a dormitory, bath and toilet rooms.

WORKMAN ENDS 30 YEARS AT NAVY YARD

Malcolm F. Bears, Navy Yard employe, yesterday ended a career of 30 years as a government worker. For 15 of the 30 years he has been "leading man and quarterman" in joiner work at the yard. More recently he has supervised this work in rebuilding the historic frigate Constitution.

He goes on his vacation today and on the end of the month will be retired.

AT 156 LIKES BRUNETTES, PLUMP ONES

But Zaro Agha, Who Finds 11th Wife, 67, Too Old, Says Blondes Aren't Bad

New York, July 19 (INS)—"She doesn't understand me. All my life I have been looking for a woman to understand me."

Thus today spoke Zaro Agha, the man who went 156 years and eleven wives without a drink.

The "ancient" arrived in New York from Turkey via Providence, accompanied by a couple of managers.

He said woman is the most important thing in a man's life, but he admitted his present wife, a mere maid of 67, was "getting old and cranky." He hinted at a divorce—possibly in Reno.

The Turk, who added he hoped his present tour of America would be a financial success, although no has not decided just how he plans to rake in the coins, said he was much impressed with American women.

"I like brunettes, plump ones, but blondes are not so bad," he confided.

Agha said this century was preferred by him above others because:

"There has been more progress in the past 25 years, more done for mankind, than in the previous 156 years."

A RELIGIOUS DRY.

He denied he came to America at the behest of prohibitionists to show what 156 years without a drink will do to a man, and said he did not drink because it was against his religion and not because he considered liquor harmful to health.

Agha expects to appear before various medical associations—for a consideration—and his first appearance is scheduled before the Medical Authors and Editors' Association in New York.

The old Turk appeared in good health and lifted a 225-pound man off the floor to show his strength.

Dr. Harry O. Ebert, United States Health Service, who examined Agha on his arrival here, said he displayed symptoms of senility, hardening of the arteries and a cataract of the right eye.

Dr. Ebert would not venture a guess as to the age of the visitor, who is 5 feet 11 inches tall, weighs 170 pounds and is the father of 36 children. He has no teeth.

QUIT AS PORTER

Recently Agha has had no steady work. His first job was that of porter but after 112 years he got tired of it and quit.

There was no future, he said, and he got a job juggling pianos. Then he became officially greeter in his own home town of Istambul. Lately he has been just one of the greeters and "worked off and on."

SAMARITAN WHO SHOT SELF DIES

Haverhill, July 19—Mrs. Mabel Hammond of Youngstown, O., who recently mailed a check for $500 to save Helen Swasey, former equestrienne of the Barnum & Bailey Circus, from the poor house, died today, according to word received here.

On July 12, in a fit of grief over the death of her husband, she shot herself in the chest. Prior to her act she sent the check to Mrs. Swasey, whose plight had been brought to her attention. She also made a will, in which she provided for the establishment of a hospital for cats and dogs.

Mrs. Swasey, 75, once possessed of a fortune from her circus work, has been living a life of seclusion with her animal pets. Conditions were called to the attention of the city authorities and it was decided to send her to the poor farm. Mrs. Hammond's check saved her.

PASTOR LEAVES $125,000 IN WILL

Fr. John J. Farrell Also Provides for Perfecting System of Church Bells

Disposing of an estate of $125,000, the will of the late Rev. John J. Farrell, former pastor of St. Paul's Church, Dorchester, was filed in Suffolk Registry of Probate yesterday.

After making bequests to relatives, the will provides $7500 for enlarging and perfecting the system of church bells at St. Paul's Church; $1000 to St. Paul's conference and $5000 to his friend, Atty. James E. Clark.

The residue of the estate is left in trust for the benefit of two sisters, three-fifths of the trust fund income for Anna Elizabeth Farrell and two-fifths for Margaret A. Dooley.

On the death of the sisters the trust terminates and the principal is to be used in completing the construction of St. Paul's Church, and in the event there is any balance it is to be used to pay off the church mortgage.

Fr. Farrell was a pioneer in the establishment of Catholic clubs at colleges of that denomination.

WOMAN VICTIM OF AUTO IDENTIFIED

A woman fatally injured when struck by an auto on the Revere Beach Parkway, Everett, was identified last night as Miss Hannah Christiansen, 70, of Cushing ave., Dorchester. She had been visiting friends in Everett.

Police said she was struck by an auto operated by Charles D. Gordon, 17, of Freeman st., Everett.

Evening Dresses Show Tendency Toward Great Elaboration

By DOROTHY ROE
Universal Service

New York, July 19.

It's extremely aggravating,
Tantalizing, irritating—
Women can't be temperate,
Will go on exaggerating.

EXAGGERATION is one of the most fatal pitfalls of the fall mode.

So has it been of the summer mode.

And all the other modes.

When the fashion was for mannish tailored clothes, the American sisterhood couldn't be satisfied until they had copped brother's cufflinks, neckties and even his shirts and shorts.

When femininity came in at the window, discretion flew out of the door, and we reckless ladies rushed pell-mell into an orgy of ruffles.

When long dresses were timidly announced in Paris, we couldn't be satisfied until we were sweeping the street.

AND NOW the long-suffering couturiers are making a last, desperate plea for temperance, for moderation in all things.

Long skirts for fall are a variable quantity.

Skirts, so the dictators tell us, lengthen with the shadows.

We start out in the morning with street or sports clothes that reach four or five inches below the knee.

When we change for the matinee, we don a soft silk frock that is a couple of inches longer.

For late afternoon wear, skirts may flirt with the ankles.

And for evening, anything goes but a train. Skirts that just clear the floor, leaving a sanitary margin of a half inch or so, are the smartest. And even hem lines are still in favor although a few designers are giving way to scallops.

* * *

EVENING DRESSES are showing a tendency toward greater elaboration, for fall wear. The simple bodices and heavily trimmed skirts of grandmother's day are coming in again.

Chanel shows a plaid organdie which has a decidedly pre-Civil War air.

And there is another, presented by that same resourceful designer, which is demure and yet not at all innocent, in white chiffon. It has curved bands of shirring on bodice and hips, and a very wide skirt, falling softly, cut in wedge-shaped sections. Most devastating, if you should ask me.

Vionnet's mid-season showing features elaborate skirts with diagonal ruffles, spirals and petal-like arrangements. These for evening, of course.

AND side by side with these gay nineties models are slinky white satin gowns, as slim as you please, and lace frocks with bell skirts, exquisitely plain.

The new handling of chiffon in pleats—pleats of every variety, box and knife, pressed and unpressed, is one of the most important innovations of the mode.

SHORT white wraps of shining white satin, worn with long black gowns, make one of the most striking combinations for evening.

Contrast between frock and wrap is pronounced in most cases, although there are lots of matching wraps and dresses.

Crepe de chine is again in high favor for evening, because it drapes beautifully.

And fans are everywhere.

ART MUSEUM GETS PELHAM MINIATURE

A miniature likeness of William Wignall Stevens, credited to Henry Pelham (1710-1506), half brother of John Singleton Copley, has been presented to the Museum of Fine Arts by Mrs. Horatio Greenough Curtis.

Pelham belonged to a Tory family and left Boston for Halifax in 1776 when he was 27 years of age, later sailing for England and Ireland. There are 12 pictures recorded miniatures painted by him in America.

Brown Best Choice for Awkward Interlude

It Fits Into Midsummer, But Looks to Fall

Casual Method of Ensembling is Gaining in Favor

By ANN ARDEN

IT TAKES no end of ingenious planning to keep one's wardrobe so up to date that there are no odd-of-the-season gaps. How often one finds it difficult to slip smartly from one season into another!

The transition from summer to fall is one of the most difficult in fashion. Very few women carry anything but light frocks through the warm months. Then fall usually launches radical changes to the mode, often so radical that even spring clothes are hopelessly demoded. This disturbing development leaves the average wardrobe sartorially stranded.

Ann Arden.

By a bit of forethought, however, this awkward interlude can be tided over. For instance, there is brown. Brown fits into the midsummer scheme but looks to fall. Brown with white combinations for the country. Brown in sheer fabrics that create more than an illusion of summeriness. Brown for town costumes and still again for travel.

Since the early color charts for fall show a preponderance of brown tones, the smart woman will begin now to insert them in her own wardrobe.

Vanilla Is New Beige Shade

Whether the favorite beige will ever relinquish its hold on the feminine fancy is a question made still more difficult by the appearance of a new beige shade called vanilla. There have been eggshell, toast and biscuit shades, but the new vanilla is a lovely creamy shade that looks extremely well with browns.

The lovely gown of deep cream net pictured is a Chanel model. From the close-fitting hipline, the skirt is composed of small ruffles, plisse, and of slightly varying width, topped with a belt of net finished in small flat bow. The bodice has a bolero top edged in two bands of the net, with flat center bows echoing the beltline.

The fichu cape covering the shoulders is deeper in back and is outlined in four small plisse ruffles. The hat is of pink velvet faced in taffetas the same shade, and boasting a bow of the velvet across the back as its sole trimming.

Pearl and crystal jewelry is worn, and a 'kerchief of beige chiffon edged in lace completes the color scheme.

Casual Method of Ensembling

This charming costume might do duty for a bride, at an informal wedding; would be quite perfect for bridesmaids, or for the many formal afternoon and informal evening affairs of summer.

A new twist to the familiar process of ensembling is gaining headway every day. Whether it simplifies or complicates the getting together of radiantly chic costumes is for you to decide; so much depends upon an original viewpoint and a flair for mixing congenial colors.

The new method of ensembling is casual. It calls for much less matching than heretofore—but for what tact in combining colors! The old order of ensembling, however, has taught a great deal, so there really should not be too many offensive examples of mismating parading the avenues when this new system gets into full swing.

An inkling of the sort of combinations that will look distinctly "fall" perhaps will be useful to you right now. Dark green will be seen in accessories that accompany the perennially popular brown costumes of autumn. A refreshing idea, isn't it? And brown accessories may enhance wine-red frocks. There are infinite possibilities for your being original again—even to the extent of surpassing a hyacinth-blue and mauve-brown entente!

—Model from F. P. O'Connor Co

CHANEL GOWN of deep cream net, skirt formed of small ruffles, plisse. Bolero bodice top banded in net, as is the belt. Fichu cape, edged with four small ruffles. Hat of pink velvet, bow of velvet across back, underbrim faced in taffetas.

The combination of brown and white has long been chic for sports, but is now invading every hour of the day, for occasions formal and otherwise.

The newest note in the evening mode is the white frock with an accent of brown.

The combination is achieved in many ways. For instance, a white flat crepe or chiffon dress may be complemented by a brown velvet paletot and slippers of satin or crepe de chine dyed to match the latter.

A white satin gown may have a brown sequin short coat; or the jacket may be white with a trim of brown fur. Jewels may be in brown, topaz, or composition of some kind. A flower and a belt may be brown.

In Paris, brown suede gloves reaching just to the elbows were noted. However, it is well to use the accent color discreetly, as too much looks obvious. A brown jacket and shoes; a brown flower, belt, shoes and gloves; brown jewelry with brown bag and shoes are examples of "just enough."

With the white evening gown in the ascendency, it seems that the white evening flower is gaining popularity.

Evening hemlines have had such difficulty in deciding whether to be long or short that at last they have reached a compromise and many of them are shorter in front and long in back.

New fashions of back fulness and intricate drapery make this hemline a logical development of the new mode.

101 YEARS OLD TODAY, PASTOR TO CELEBRATE

Rev. Ebenezer Bean, the Dean of Congregational Ministers and Bowdoin Graduates

North Yarmouth, Me., July 19—The Rev. Ebenezer Bean, oldest Congregational minister in the world, oldest graduate of Bowdoin College, and oldest member of the Theta Delta Chi Fraternity, will celebrate his 101st birthday here tomorrow.

Rev. E. Bean

"The young people of today are no less serious-minded than the young people of my day," he stated.

"Prosperity has not hurt them," he went on. "I wish more people could enjoy the comforts and conveniences of modern life."

BELIEVES IN PROHIBITION

Entering Bowdoin in 1853 and graduating in 1857, he has been closely identified with the college ever since, and he takes great pride in that fact that he sent "six, eight, sometimes ten boys a year" to Bowdoin from Bridgeton Academy, where he was principal for a number of years.

He was asked to compare the liquor problem of his college days with that of today.

"Why, sir," he said, "no aspersions were cast on a man's character if he kept a jug of spirits in his college room then, and invited a few friends to have a drink. A man could drink and still be a gentleman. Everything depended on how he behaved.

"One thing," he laughed, "we knew what we were drinking then."

"Do you believe in Prohibition?"

"I do," he replied vigorously.

"Do you think it can be enforced?"

"I do—if people stop drinking."

BORN IN CONWAY, N. H.

Mr. Bean was born in Conway, N. H., July 20, 1829. He attended the district school, then Fryburg Academy. He began teaching at 18, after which he worked his way through college and divinity school. He taught school in Maine for several years.

His first pastorate after graduating from divinity school was in Dexter. Afterward he received a call from Gray, where he remained 18 years.

After serving in the church for 45 years, he retired in 1907 and went to live with his daughter, the wife of the late Edward Cary Hayes, professor in the State university in Urbana, Ill.

He attributes his long life to the "git up and git" principles inculcated by his parents. He has never smoked.

MALDEN POLICE HUNT FOR MISSING MAN

Malden police have been asked to locate Morris Solomon, 65, missing since Wednesday night from his home on Bryan st., that city.

Solomon, who speaks little English, left members of his family, ostensibly to retire, about 9 o'clock. His wife went to his room later and found him missing.

Members of the family fear he may be wandering about, unable to tell who he is.

RADIOS FOR MIAMI AIR MAIL PLANES

Atlanta, Ga., July 19 (AP)—Installation of radio receiving sets on the Atlanta-New York-Miami air mail planes is well under way and F. E. Gray, new radio engineer for the Eastern Air Transport, Inc., said they will mean a marked improvement in service in bad weather.

Gray is supervising installation of the equipment on 22 air mail ships.

BLACK FROCKS FOR BRIDGE ARE DECREED BY PARIS

By International News Service

Paris, July 19.

BRIDGE FROCKS will be black ones, nearly always with a touch of white on them, according to the latest decrees of the French fashion-makers who insist that there is nothing smarter than this old magpie combination, nothing more becoming and alluring.

Sheer black with a bit of cream or white lace makes the most charming sort of bridge frock and late afternoon gown.

Martial and Armand are using it for a short-sleeved bolero ensemblemated by black lace and suede gloves. The lace hem of the skirt and the shirred blouse are interesting details which make the gown one that can be worn all evening.

For the very warm afternoon there is a charming black lace frock sleeveless and with tiny shoulder-cape tied with a ribbon beneath the chin.

Philippe et Gaston make a black bridge frock in faille silk which promises to be one of the winter's smartest fabrics. It is flared below the hiplines by a series of graduated ruffles with scalloped border edged with horsehair braid. The frills at the neckline and around the wrists are of horsehair braid.

STUNT FLIER DIES IN PLANE CRASH

Creston, Ia., July 19 (AP)—Joseph Londergan, 30, of St. Joseph, Mo., was killed today when his airplane crashed during the dedication of Creston's airport.

The flier was unable to get his machine out of a spin.

Tee off with golf balls your tooth paste pays for Intelligent people, recognizing the remarkable cleansing powers of Listerine Tooth Paste at 25¢, buy it instead of dentifrices in the 50¢ class. The average saving is $3 a year. Spend it as you please. Golf balls are merely a suggestion.

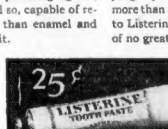
See teeth whiten!
Feel your mouth grow healthier

EVEN those whose teeth are hard to whiten comment on how swiftly, yet how gently, Listerine Tooth Paste performs this task. Such action is due to new cleansing and polishing agents, harder than tartar and so, capable of removing it, but softer than enamel and therefore harmless to it.

And regular users assert that this dentifrice definitely improves mouth hygiene. The gums grow firmer. The entire mouth seems fresher, exhilarated, and healthy.

Buy a tube of Listerine Tooth Paste and give it a thorough short trial. Compare it with any paste at any price—and judge by results alone. After such tests, more than a million people have switched to Listerine Tooth Paste. We can think of no greater tribute to the product.



Incidentally, Listerine Tooth Paste saves you about $3 per year, over dentifrices in the 50¢ class. Lambert Pharmacal Company, St. Louis, Mo., U. S. A.
